

A Method for Inactivating Pathogens, in Particular
Viruses, in a Biological Material

A b s t r a c t :

A method of inactivating pathogens, in particular viruses, in a biological material by incubation with a chemical agent, which method is characterized in that incubation is carried out in the presence of a eluotropic salt corresponding to a NaCl concentration of at least 200 mmol/l, preferably at least 300 mmol/l, as well as a chromatographically purified, prothrombin complex containing preparation are disclosed.

000110:03920460